INTRODUCTION

The Richmond Memorial Health Foundation (RMHF) engaged Performance Management Group at Virginia Commonwealth University (PMG) to develop a community asset inventory documenting community assets and interventions. Rather than identifying the needs or deficiencies in an area, asset identification methods spotlight the strengths a community already possesses¹. Community assets include, but are not limited to, schools, libraries, health and wellness facilities, parks, places of worship, and neighborhood associations. Every attempt has been made to have the Inventory be inclusive. The information included represents a snapshot in time and any omissions are genuinely unintentional.

In thriving communities, members leverage assets and engage with each other to develop a common vision for the neighborhood. Relationships built among these community resources provide the glue for innovative collaborations on a systemic level and these partnerships strengthen the entire community and promote sustainability.

GEOGRAPHIC FOCUS AREA

The City of Richmond has an area of 62 square miles, according to 2010 U.S. Census data its population is 204,214, and is comprised of nine unique Council districts. The City's median annual household income is $42,800 for a family of four, the current poverty rate is 22%, and over one-third of Richmond's children under the age of 18 live in poverty².

The focus area for this Community Asset Inventory is Council District 7 in the City of Richmond's East End. This historic area is home to St. John's Church, the historic Roberson Theater, and the Virginia Holocaust Museum. It contains four public housing communities (over 50% of the residents in public housing are under the age of 18) and seven Richmond public schools. The total population is 21,038, the poverty rate is estimated to be 29.1%, and the annual household income in 2005-2009 is $28,000³ for a family of four in this defined area.

In contrast, a district of similar size and considered to be a "thriving" area in Richmond has the following demographic characteristics: total population is 23,341, the poverty rate is estimated to be 8%, and the median household income is $82,000⁴. There are many factors historical and current which have created the statistical differences between these neighboring communities.
